fifty per cent. of expenses of the District, &c. was then agreed to as amended, no change being made in the fifty per cent. clause.

The fourth section of the bill providing that all taxes shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States to be disbursed on the itemized vouchers, and that the Secretary of the Treasury shall pay the interest on 3.65 bonds of the District of Columbia, and also create a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of such bonds, was agreed to, with several important amendments, but none affecting the 3.65 bonds. These were not mentioned at all after the section had been read, but it can be amended when the bill shall be reported to the Senate. The fifth section of the bill, relating to contracts for pavements, repairs of streets, &c., was then read. Mr. Whyte said the committee had evidently made a mistake in omitting Baltimore from the list of cities in which notice shall be given in one newspaper of work to be done, &c. He moved to insert Baltimore, so that the advertisement should appear in one newspaper in each of the cities of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Was' ington. Agreed to. Bleeding To Death. THE SERIOUS CONSEQUENCES THAT FOLLOWED THE EXTRACTION OF A YOUNG WOMAN'S [New York Herald.]

"A young girl is bleeding to death at No. 81 Roosevelt street," said a gentleman to a reporter yesterday. An investigation disclosed the following facts: Delia Lynch, an employe of James Brady, mailing agent in Spruce street, on last Saturday went to Preterre's dental depot, in the Bowery, to have an aching tooth extracted. When she returned home hemorrhage from the socket continued to increase in volume until her parents became so much alarmed that they despaired of her life. During the night they watched by her bedside, and the hemorrhage still continuing, Dr. Naughton, their family physician, was called in called in. THE GIRL'S STORY.

When the reporter called yesterday, Delia, a strong muscular girl, but pale as a corpse from loss of blood, was lying on a sofa scarcely able to turn her head from side to side, she said: 'All last week I had been suffering from neuralgia, and when Mr. Brady paid me Saturday evening. I went with my friend, Mary Ann Condon, to No. 159 Bowery, where I was told teeth could be extracted withou pain. The dentist asked me what I wished to pay. He said he could pull my tooth for fifty cents, but it would hurt me very much. For $1 he could give me gas, and pull it without much pain, but for $2 he could give me better gas and pull. but for $2 he could give me better gas, and pull it out without hurting me at all. I paid the $2, and of what occurred after I am only dimly conscious until I returned home. He had placed a piece of cotton in the hole where my tooth had been, but the blood kept surging up in my mouth until I thought it would choke met Mary Ann Condon, the girl who was with me, went back to the dentist, and told him how badly I was bleeding. He told her that if he left his office he would charge $2 for the visit and fifty cents for the medicine. She ran out of his office, and came back to me frightened. That is all I know until Dr. Naughion came and stopped the bleeding. Mrs. Lynch, the mother of the girl, told the reporter that her daughter bled from the effects of the dental operation from six o'clock Saturday evening until nine o'clock Sunday

Dr. Naughton said: "It is a very remarkable case. I have only seen two like it; but neither one of those was as serious as this. "ARTIFICIAL JAWBONES."

At No. 159 Bowerv the reporter was confronted with the sign, "E. & A. Preterre, French Dentists." Entering the house, he was ushered into a comfortably furnished parlor by a lady who said the doctor was an lor by a lady, who said the doctor was engaged, but would be at leisure in a few moments. Prominent among the many ornaments on the walls was a circular, from which the following extract is taken verbatim: ARTIFICIAL JAW BONES.-Officers and men belonging to the Army and Navy who have had the misfortune to lose their teeth, together with a portion or the whole of the jaw bones, by musket or cannon shot, can have them substituted successfully without leaving any deformity whatever. E. & A. Preterre would refer such unfortunates to the specimens of hundreds of such cases of distressing deformity successfully remedied by them at No. 159 Bowery, New York; in Paris and London, which may be seen at their office, occurring among the victims of the Crimean campaign and the heroes of Magenta and Sol-ferino.

In a few moments Dr. Preterre came in He was quite affable, extremely polite, but thoroughly non-committal. He said: "I do not remember the case to which you refer. I pulled eighteen teeth on Saturday night. If this girl had hemorrhage from the extraction of her tooth all she had to do was to come back here and I would have stopped it." "But," said the reporter, "her friend did come back, she herself was too weak from loss of blood to return." The doctor reiterated the statement that he knew nothing whatever about the oc-currence, and bowed the reporter out. Several physicians to whom the reporter stated the case said that death might ensue from the rupture of the inferior dental artery, as it is a branch of the carotid. Certainly the girl is very weak and near death's door. CHARGES AGAINST MRS. TILTON-The Plymouth Examining Committee Decides to send back Mrs. Walton's Letter.—The examining committee of Plymouth church held a meeting last evening, at the residence of S. V. White, No. 210 Columbia Heights. There were present Mr. White, Thomas J. Tilney, *Dr. George W. Brush and Isaac Signor. The letter of Mrs. Barbara Walton, containing charges against Mrs. Tilton and Mrs. Morse, was appealed and read by Mr. White The was opened and read by Mr. White. The charges were based upon statements made to Mrs. Walton by Mrs. Tilton and Mrs. Morse on the day that Mrs. Tilton's last confession was given to the press. Mrs. Tilton repeated the allegations made in her confession, and Mrs. Morse spoke abusively of all churches and ministers. Mrs. Walton, in her letter, charged Mrs. Tilton with slandering the pastor, and spoke of Mrs. Morse's determination never again "to darken the doors of Plymouth church.' The committee, after listening to the letter. decided that inasmuch as charges were made against both Mrs. Tilton and Mrs. Morse, although the latter's connection with the church was dissolved in 1871, and as the charges were informal, the best course would be to send the etter back to Mrs. Walton with a request that the charges should be made more specific and should apply only to Mrs. Tilton. Mr. White said last night that if Mrs. Walton refused to accede to the committee's request, some other member of the church would prefer charges, when which the committee gould set — N. TAMPERING WITH A JURY.—Thomas Egan, Supervisor of Rensselaer county, is now on trial at Troy, for malfeasance in office in auditing fraudulent bills against the county. Last night Judge Osborn locked up the jury at the Troy House. While there the prosecution employed one of Pinkerton's detectives to watch the jury, and discovered a note being handed to the Sheriff's officer to give to a jury. man. He informed the District Attorney, and the latter demanded the note of the officer. It was given up and found to read as follows:

FRIEND TAYER—This is a political fight. Stand for the party.

Reynolds is ex-county clerk and a candidate for the democratic nomination for Sheriff. The matter was fully exposed in court this morning, and the officers are now scouring the city for Reynolds.—[N, Y, Herald, 24th.] TAMPERING WITH A JURY .- Thomas Egan.

THE BEECHERS.

The Record of Lyman Beecher's Eleven Children-The Career of the Dying Eldest Sister-A Bereavement That Led to a Life of Consecration-The Labors of the Brothers in the Pulpit, the Counting-Room, at Sea and on the Field of Battle.

[Brooklyn Eagle, 19th.] Miss Catherine Beecher, the eldest sister of Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, was in a dying condition last evening at the residence of Rev. Thos. K. Beecher, in Elmira, N. Y. She was stricken with apoplexy on Friday last. After the shock she became unconscious, and her physicians at once abandoned all hope that she would recover. With Miss Beecher will pass away the eldest survivor of the celebrated family. She was one of the most remarkable and useful women of her time. Catherine Beecher was born in the year 1800, in the little village of East Hampton, Long Island. Her early years were spent at that place, and she afterward removed with her father, the noted Dr. Lyman Beecher, to Litchfield, Conn. She was carefully educated and soon developed the sterling qualities of intellect which dis-tinguish all the members of this wonderful family. At an early age she evinced a decided taste for music, and in that branch she was trained by competent masters until she became a fine singer and skillful planist. It was the intention of Miss Beecher, when she came of age, to teach music, an occupa-tion for which she was splendidly fitted. After the removal of the family to Litchfield she

ACQUAINTED WITH PROFESSOR FISHER, of Yale College, a noted man, in whom gre expectations settled. Their acquaintance soon into intimacy and the intimacy into love. Some time after their engagement Professor Fisher went abroad. The vessel on which he was passenger went ashore in a terrific storm on the Oid Head of Kinsale, south coast of Ireland, and Professor Fisher was drowned. The sad tidings of her loss fell heavily upon the girl in the New England home. It scemed as if the blow would be a fatal one. Her father and other relatives did all in their power to comfort her, but she was almost inconsolable. Her bereavement seemed to have an effecupon her religious views. She was prostrated for a year, and the effect of the sorrow on her health was felt years later. The trouble gave great intensity to her dissent from high Cal-vanistic doctrines, and destroyed nearly all the religious teachings of her life. Subsequently to her great loss, Miss Beecher aimed constantly to accomplish a high and worthy work. From dreams of a happy married life and a cheerful home she turned the vigor of her broad and cultured mind to the elevation of her sex. Though nearly always an invalid. she never faltered in her labors. She toiled systematically, intelli-gently and effectually to achieve her ends, and she did achieve them. While yet a young woman she established a high school for girls in the city of Hartford, Conn. The school was very successful. Many teachers graduated from it, and it gained a wide reputation among the numerous similar institutions of New England. In 1832, when Dr. Lyman Beecher moved to Cincinnati, Miss Beecher went out there and established a female seminary With such able assistants as Miss Mary Dut ton, Miss Elizabeth Lynn and Miss Harriet Beecher, the institution was made one of the best in the western states. Such seats of learning were scarce in those days, and its inluence was widely felt. Miss Beecher's health failed at about this time, and she became lame. Physical affliction only added zeal to her endeavors, and she entered upon a grander field of labor than she had yet contemplated. She traveled extensively in nearly every state, and became perfectly familiar with the education necessities of the growing west. She established a thorough system of home missionary work. after she had placed it upon an enduring basis she engaged in

A YET MORE IMPORTANT SCHEME It was the inauguration of the great society, of which Governor Slade, of Vermont, was secretary, for carrying teachers from the Eastern States to the West. Thousands of teachers were taken out by this society, and their teachings were of incalculable value in developing that section of the Union. Most of these teachers removed to the West, married influential men, and by their influence upon their husbands secured their active assistance in the extension of the educational cause. Miss Beecher, after getting the society well under way, began the establishment of a number of female seminaries in the Northwest of a magnitude called for by the rapid increase in the population and the growing demands for culture. The seminaries were modeled after the great institution at Mount Holyoke, and were

SCHOOLS OF HIGH REPUTATION. One of them was located at Milwaukee and several in the State of Illinois. As soon as one seminary was placed upon a firm foundation she removed to a distant point and started another school.

Miss Beecher continued her labors in the west until a comparatively recent period. During all the time she has more or less continued to write for various religious papers. Although advanced in years and suffering severely from her physical infirmities, the lady evinced no diminution of mental vigor, and the produc-tions of her pen were characterized by all the power of those written in earlier years. One reason why she went to Elmira about a year ago was to secure treatment at the water-cure of Dr. Glerson, where she has sojourned during most of her residence there. Miss Beecher's friends recall with pleasure her many excellent social qualities. Her musical accomplishments were highly appreciated. She always prided herself on her familiarity with the old hymns, sixty of which she knew by heart. Even in her old age her voice retained much of its former volume and even retained much of its former volume and sweetness. She was a clever artist, and some of her sketches are in possession of her friends liv-ing in Brooklyn. With young people Miss Beecher was always a great favorite. She was full of wit and humor. Christmas tide nearly always overtook her in some glad New England household, where she was first to join in the joyous frolics of the children and to aid them in writing poetry and compositions for the festival. She was apt and ready in everything that could bring joy to the juvenile heart.

Miss Beecher was a communicant of the Protestant Episcopal Church up to the time of her

Rev. William Beecher, is fiving in Chicago. He was born in 1802, at West Hampton. His father intended that he should embark in mercantile life. He never went to college, but after some experience as a merchant he entered the ministry. His pulpit labors were performed in Middletown, Connecticut, Newport, Rhode Island, and Toledo, Euclid and Putnam, Ohio. Rev. Edward Beecher, D. D., the second son, is well known in Brooklyn and now resides on Macon street, in this city. He was vale-dictorian of his class in Yale College and entered the ministry at an early age. His first settlement was in the Park street church. Boston. In 1833 he accepted the Presidency of the college at Jacksonville, Illinois. After remaining there for many years, desiring to continue his theological studies under advantageous circumstances, he went to Boston. where he took charge of the Salem street church. Some years later he removed to Galesburg, Illinois. He took up his residence in Brooklyn six or eight years ago.

Mrs. Mary Perkins, the second daughter, is new residing in Boston with her son-in-law, the Rev. Edward Everett Hale. She spent most of her life in Hartford, where her husband, who died several years ago, formally practiced law.

The next son was Rev. George Beecher, who was a clergyman of great ability. His first settlement as a clergyman was in Batavia, Ohio, his second in Rochester, N. Y., and his third in Chillicothe, Ohio. He was beloved by the people at all the places named, and achieved great success. His career was terrin. Florida, during the winter, and in Hartford during the summer months. Her career, and that of her brother Henry Ward Beecher. are too well known to need any description

Rev. Charles Beecher, who is two years younger than the pastor of Piymouth, is a clergyman in Georgetown, Massachusetts. Mrs. Isabella Beecher Hooker, a younger sister, lives in Hartford. She is the wife of of John Hooker, a lawyer, and is known as a warm advocate of woman suffrage.

Rev. Thomas K. Beecher, an eloquent and distinguished divine, is the next brother. His first pulpit charge was a church which he founded in Williamsburg, Massachusetts. From there he went to Elmira, where he has preached ever since to one of the finest congregations in the state.

The youngest brother is Rev. Jas. C. Beecher. In early life he was a seafaring man, and labored as a missionary among them. He rose to the position of first mate on the ship in which he sailed. He afterward entered the ministry, and labored as a chaplain in Hong Kong and other places in China. Mr. Beecher returned to the United States at the outbreak of the war of the rebellion, and was made of the war of the rebellion, and was made chaplain of 1st Long Island volunteer regiment. After one year's service he became lieutenant colonel of a new regiment which was about taking the field. It was said of him at this time that he prayed well and preached well, but he fought better. His services in the field ways recognized by his promotion to the well, but he fought better. His services in the field were recognized by his promotion to the position of brigadier general. At the close of the war he was placed in command of the military department of the south, and some time later he settled in Oswego, where he preached. He afterwards labored in Poughkeepsie. The reverend gentleman is now engaged in missionary work in Ulster county.

All of the children before Mrs. Stowe were born in West Hampton. The others, excepting James, were natives of Litchfield. James C. Beecher was born in Boston. C. Beecher was born in Boston.

THE FOUR THAT COLUMBIA COLLEGE WILL SEND OUT TO THE HENLEY REGATTA. The Columbia College four are to sail for England to day, in the City of Chester. They go purely as a college crew, and disclaim any intention of going as champions of America. The crew yesterday were as follows:

No. 2, Harry G. Ridabock 21
No. 3, Cyrus Edson...... 20
Bow, Ed E. Sage.......... 23

Whether ther can contend successfully against English crews remains to be seen. Goodwin, the cap-tain and stroke, rowed No. 2 in the famous six-oared university race in 1874, in which the pretty blue and white colors of Columbia went to the fore. In 1875 he was captain and stroke in the university crew, and won a good place at the finish, and in 1876 he held similar position. This race, though won by Corneli, would most assuredly have been won by Columbia had not one man in a most unaccountable manner gone to pieces before the end of the first mile. Since then Goodwin rowed in the Columbia eight, vanquished by Harvard last summer, and in several fouroared races. The record of his four was good at the Centennial, but the sickness of a member caused its withdrawal in the final trial Sage rowed No. 2 in 1875 and 1876 in the University races, and pulled bow in the eight of last summer and in the four. Edson and Ridabock rowed in the eight last year. Edson also rowed in the four that last year vanquish ed the Argonauta four.

The crew take with them two boats, a paper one built by Waters of Troy, and a Spanish cedar built by Fearon of New York. The races they contend in will be a college race against Oxford and Cambridge, and a regular open July 4 and 5. The members of the crew will not row in pairs or singles. In the amateur open four-oared race it is said their principal competitor will be the London Rowing Club. In the college race the light and dark blue of England will be the only colors pitted against the blue and white of Columbia. After the races the crew will take a short trip to Paris to see the exposition, and will return home in August. Opinion among rowing men is divided as to their chances.—[N. Y.Sun, May 23d.
